Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was discussed: Applicant's Representive contends that applicant's invention is distinguishable over Beller because the computer system in applicant's invention has logic that is capable of automatically detecting one or more visual marks. This, according to Applicant's Rep., is different from Beller in that the operator has to add marks to the real time image depicted on the display so as to identify the image. Applicant's Rep. further contends that the computer logic is what determines the identifier. Examiner noted Applicant's Reps. arguments. Examiner informed Applicant's Rep. to respond to the outstanding Office Action mailed on February 11, 2004. Examiner shall review applicant's arguments and the references cited, and then conduct further consideration and/or search to determine patentability.
